

Digital Platform “Communicating Religious Life”

Taking into consideration the four objectives of the International Meeting of Communication for Religious Life:

1. Nurture the culture of communication
2. Mapping the reality of Communication in Religious Life
3. Strengthening networking and collaboration
4. Improve communication skills,

The digital platform, available in five languages, is one of the tools we decided to use.

It is the UISG website that responds to the desire to create a digital manual of communication by overcoming the barrier of printed paper and therefore making it accessible to everyone and at all times - mainly to the communicators of religious life who today are called upon to face numerous challenges and to enhance their skills.

The aim of the Platform is to provide information and resources on the main themes of religious communication today: f.ex social media, artificial intelligence, institutional communication, religious marketing and many more.

There are three main sections on the site: news, events and multimedia.

On the homepage, you will now find information on the International Meeting and later, it is in this part that you will also find the registration form for the event in November.

In the news section you can find articles from the world of religious communication.

Among the events you can look for training opportunities on the themes of religious communication organized by the UISG and other institutions.

Multimedia is the main and biggest part of the platform. In this section, thanks to the selection of the tags and other filters (such as language and type of content), you can access the resources that interest you most at any given moment. The linguistic availability may vary in the case of each content.

The contents are available in different formats: video files, texts, images and downloadable texts.

As the Platform is a joint effort between several experts in the field, we invite you to contribute to it by proposing content, news and events related to the world of religious communication that you find interesting.

If you would like to recommend us a content, please, feel free to contact us via email at: imcrl2023@uisg.org.
